Nervously, Layton sat up on his bed and stretched. It was Layton's first day as an apprentice. He was excited but extremely nervous. Layton was 16 years old and needed a job. His mom, Caroline, had made him apply for a job as a painter. Layton had to meet his boss (called Becca) at Wester Hayes park at 12pm. He's never thought of having a girl boss, (that's the selfish side of Layton). The park Layton was meeting Becca at was about a 4 mile walk from his house. Luckily, it was as hot as an oven, outside despite it only being February.

Finally after a long and hot walk Layton arrived - LATE! Angrily, Becca approached him demanding he get started straight away! "Go to the shed over there and fetch us some Ocean blue paint!" Layton dashed as fast as a bullet to the shed. The door swung open he sped up the ladder hoping to find the paint he wanted yet all he found was a small bucket of black paint. Layton dashed back down the ladder and told Becca that he couldn't find blue paint. Becca demanded he went back up and didn't come back down till he found the right paint! Eventually, Layton returned with the right paint colour. They headed to the bench and started painting...

2 seconds
Later!

"LAYTON YOUR DOING IT WRONG!" Layton jumped out his skin as Becca shouted at him like a fog horn.

"Watch ill show you how to do it correct!" said Becca smugly. Becca showed Layton how to paint the bench to "perfection." "Swish swash, swish swash." Went the brush hitting the bench. "Here you try." Layton grabbed the paint brush in frustration and rapidly started painting the bench...

"Done!" panted Layton.

"Good job boy." said Becca proudly.

"I think you deserve some lunch."

"Thanks!" said Layton still trying to catch his breath. "There's a snack van over there lets go get hotdogs!"

"C.mon lets go!" and off they went, chappily skipping to the van. 13

Not long later, a couple came along on their first date hand in hand.

When they spotted the bench shining in the sun light they thought it would be a fantastic place to eat their picnic.

Park bench Morgan

It was Lola's first day working as a painter. She met her boss, Billy, who was quite an arrogant man. Immediately he demanded that she went up to the attic and get the black paint. Anxiously, she followed his orders. She lumbered the paint down from the attic, however, she picked up the baby pink paint (to the surprise of Billy). His face was red as a tomato. He shouted saying go up the ladder's and this time get the black paint? Lola went up the ladders to the attic. She got's paint she went back down. Billy yelled "perfect"!

They skipped to the park Lola said this is a brilliant day to paint. She painted the moldy bench Billy said stroke it you have alot of gaps to fill up. Billy says "I am" cheerful now you done a great job.

"Let's go to the snack van because I am really hungry - aren't you?" "yes I am let's go!" replied Lola.

There was two best friends called Liam and Calvin. Liam is really tall and he likes pizza. Calvin has blond hair short and hate's playing soccer. So they walked to the park bench and they said let's sit down I am hungry. So they sat down they were blabbering away. They tried to get up but they couldn't they were stuck because the paint was still wet. So they finally got up and Liam and Calvin said did you paint this bench. Lola said yes Calvin and Liam "yelled" you should of put a wet sign. Lola "said" sorry. Lola called Billy over and Calvin said Liam turn around Lola Billy started laughing because his trousers were ripped and so was Calvin's.

Liam and Kalvin pushed them into the pond and they shouted "that was revenge" and started laughing.

Logan

One day Jim and Bob went to the park to paint the bench. Jim realised he had the wrong color-paint. So Bob shouted at Jim. So Jim got upset and he ate the paint - suddenly he started to be sick and Bob got worried. Bob got him some water. Bob went to get the right paint and he painted the bench himself.

Jim felt very sick so Bob took him up to the hospital and the doctor took some blood and gave him some medicine. That left him in for a day and he felt better.

The next day they went back to paint the bench. Jim got the right paint and they both painted it together.

Park Bench Emma 11/3/19

As the little ducklings followed their Mum across the clear blue pond on a scorching hot summers day, 2 young girls approached the bench in the kids play park just across from the pond. Unfortunately this bench hadn't been cared for as well as it should've been (just like the rest of the park). The 2 girls were called Megan and Emily. They were at the park to paint a bench and make it look brighter. It was actually Megan's first day as a painter but Emily was the boss. Firstly they both put there overalls on as Megan was nervously zipping hers up "Oh Megan will you hurry up this bench needs done!" Emily said angrily, Megan just stood there as red as a tomato (because she gets embarrassed easily). Frustrated by Megan's attitude Emily proceeded to show Megan how to paint the bench - despite the fact she knew she would fail. Nervously, Megan tried to paint the bench, her hand shaking like a leaf. Frustrated, Emily ended up taking the paintbrush off Megan and finished painting the bench herself not considering it was Megan's first day. After Emily finished painting the bench they decided it was time for something to eat - so off to the snack van they went...

Meanwhile, a young couple walking hand in hand approached the bench. Love was in the air. Staring longly into each others eyes they sat down for a lovely lunch and to adore the view. The young couple were called John and Gill. Once they had ate their delicious lunch, they gave their scraps to the seagulls that were lingering around the bench. Then they realised the time, they had a train to catch they were going away for a week. But little did they know that the bench was actually still wet so when they stood up their trousers ripped they were raging and their faces were bursting with anger and had no words!

Out of the corner of the couples eyes they saw 2 young girls wearing painter overalls hysterically laughing at them. The couple couldn't have been any more angrier with these 2 girls. They were supposed to be going straight to the train station but after this scenario they were gonna miss their train. Once Megan and Emily actually managed to stop laughing John and Gill couldn't even speak to these girls, finally after giving each other that smug look they chucked the 2 young girls in the pond with the ducks. Maybe they should have remembered to put a wet paint sign on the bench!

Park bench

The couples names were Penny and Cliff, and they loved each other very much. Little did they know the paint on the bench was wet...

After a delicious lunch the couple decided to go for a walk around the park however, what they didn't know was that when they stood up they were in for a big surprise!

The couple packed up their stuff and tried stand up but they couldn't. They were stuck to the bench! They tugged and they tugged and what happened next was a little scary... Eventually they got off but what they saw next made them want to be stuck!

They looked at each other and gasped both of their pants had ripped! OH NO! They started gasping and shrieking some more...

Meanwhile, Layton and Becca had been having their lunch and just finished up. They walked back to the bench and what they saw was hilarious... What they saw was Penny and Cliff jumping around in frustration. Shockingly Penny and Cliff's pants were ripped and their bare bottoms showing!
